

February 2006

It's a new year and an excellent time for each of us to reflect on what we value most in our business suppliers. Whether its convenience, affordability, quality or service, we at Atom Lighting realize that our customers have many choices in today's marketplace. That is why we continually strive to meet and exceed each customer's expectations.

Atom Lighting's development team remains attentive to the changing contour of our industry to ensure that as technology develops, we have allocated proper resources designed to promote customer success. Our exterior lighting products are not only functional, maintainable and adaptable, but highlight and complement any outdoor canvass.

We will continue to bring unparalleled performance, value, and efficiency to each customer throughout the coming year with high quality, low voltage exterior lighting products designed to boldly accentuate every residential and commercial project.

We look forward to serving you and contributing to your productivity in 2006. Thank you again for the opportunity to earn your business!

Kind Regards,

Jonathan Hille
President & CEO
Atom Lighting, Inc.
